ABOUT

Who, me?

Kennedy Papian

Des Moines, Iowa

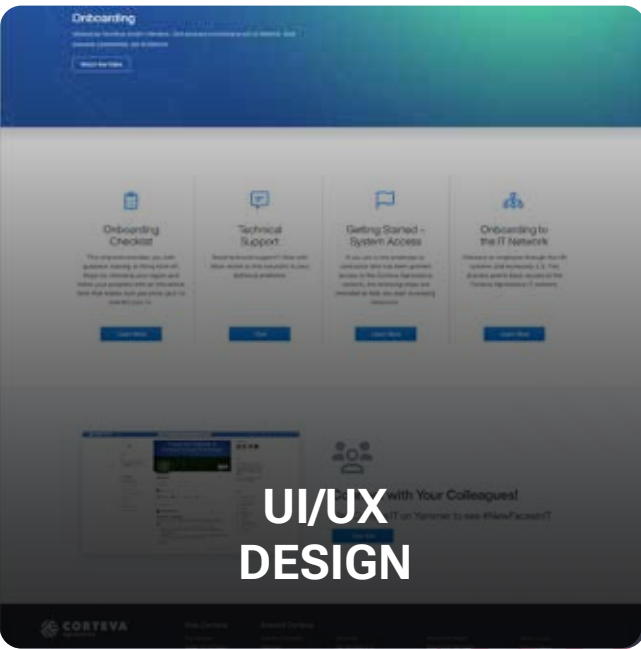

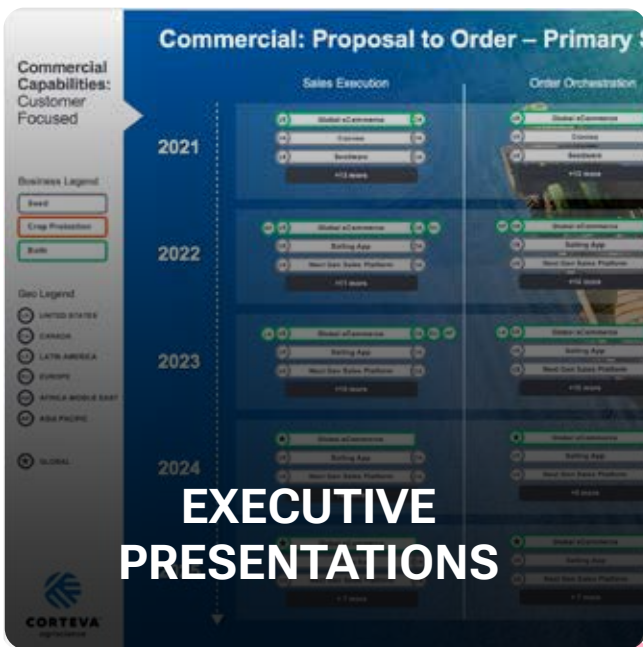

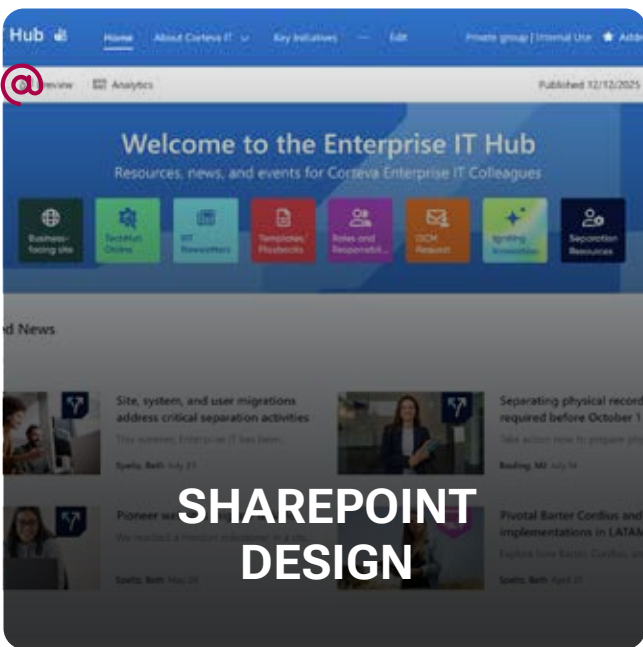

University of Iowa
Graphic Design – B.F.A.

I got my start in this industry as a graphic design assistant at the University of Iowa Hospitals & Clinics, spending much of my time laying out pages or cutting and mounting thousands of posters, banners, rack cards, and anything else you could think of. While the tools and projects have evolved over the years, one thing hasn't changed: my passion for helping people communicate more effectively through design.

I love taking complex information and turning it into something people can actually understand and engage with. Whether it's a presentation, internal communication, SharePoint site, or brand refresh, my goal is always the same: make it clear, make it useful, and make it look great.

PORTFOLIO / EMAIL MARKETING

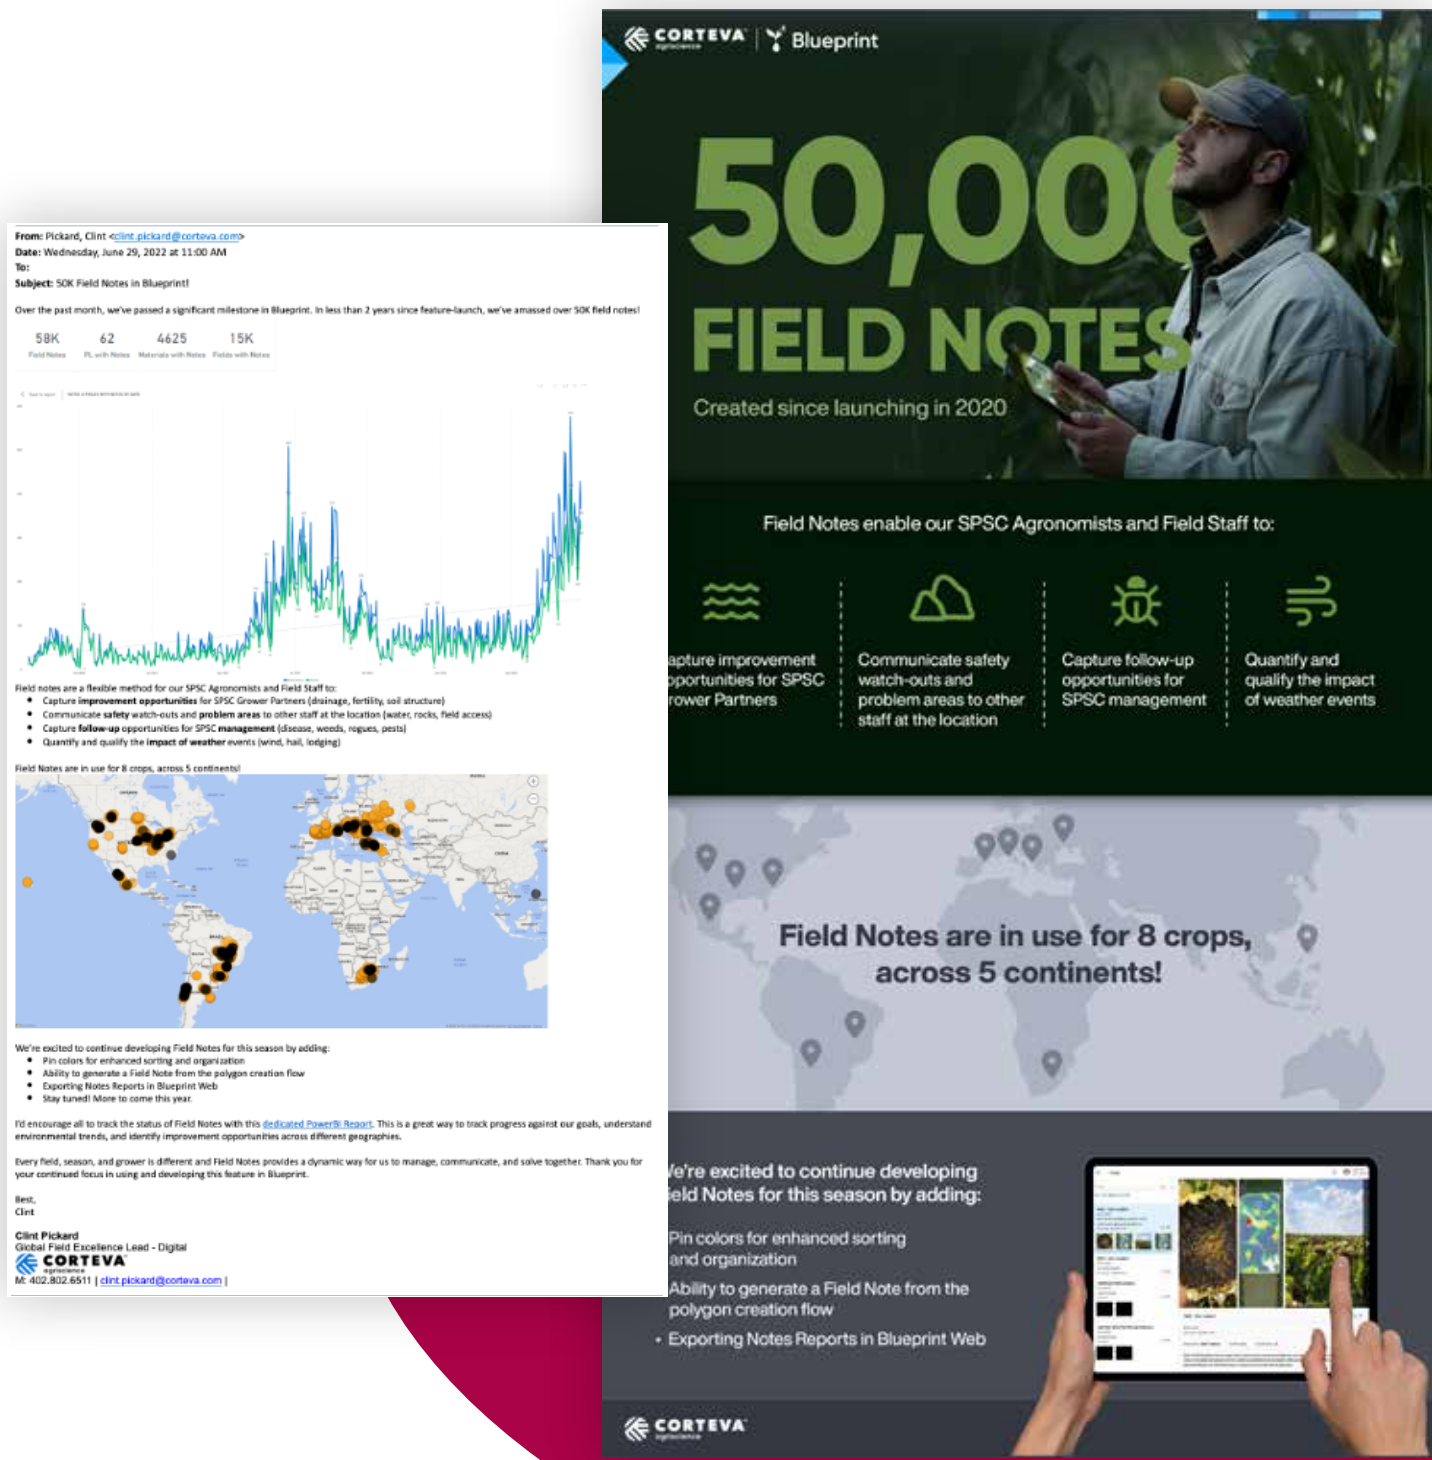

PROJECT

Email Refresh

The original email contained valuable insights about the performance of a recently launched app, but the information was difficult to read due to a lack of visual hierarchy and structure.

I redesigned the communication by introducing a clear content hierarchy, improving readability, and creating a more engaging layout that helped key metrics and takeaways stand out.

The design refresh sent out to a second group of stakeholders resulted in a 25%+ increase in click-through engagement.

PROJECT

Internal Communications

I developed a wide range of internal communications, including monthly newsletters, leadership updates, and project-specific campaigns. Using Adobe Illustrator, Photoshop, SendGrid, and Workshop, I created visually engaging email experiences that aligned with organizational goals and improved message clarity.

My communications consistently achieved higher engagement rates than standard pre-formatted templates, demonstrating the value of custom design, thoughtful content hierarchy, and audience-focused messaging.
